

World Book Day Book Club June reader questions

Honey's Hive by Mo O'Hara, published by Andersen Press

1. Based on author Mo O'Hara's Book Club question for readers:
All the worker bee's in Honey's Hive have a special role to play. What role would you play if you were a bee in a hive?
2. What did you enjoy about this book?
3. At the beginning of the book (read the extract here) Honey talks about her class 'Bee Code'. Do you have a class code? What's good about having one? Are there any problems? If you don't have one what do you think a good class code would include?
4. Do you enjoy stories that also have information (facts) in them? Is it easy to know what is information and what is story?
5. In this book, the main character Honey likes to daydream about going on exciting adventures. When you daydream, what are you imagining yourself doing?
6. Did this book remind you of anything else you've read – if so, what?
7. Did this book remind you of any other adventure books? Can you recommend some?
