Jonny Duddle

Many million years ago,
beyond the path of the lava flow,
on the edge of the jungle, one sunny day,
four little dinosaurs went out to play.

Their mums had told them to keep one eye peeled for pterosaurs in the sky and hungry carnivores on the path;
as the others trembled, Bonehead laughed.

GIGANTOSAURUS
doesn't scare me!
I'm too smart to be his tea!

In fact, I'm a DINO-EXPERT!
I really am the BEST!
You might know the names of some,
but I know ALL the rest.

I've made this thing I call a BOOK.
I might let you three have a look.
We'll play my game called DINO-SPOT.
To win, you'll have to spot the lot!

I found these juicy berries,
bigger than your eyes!
They do look quite delicious and they will be our PRIZE!

“I’ve made this thing I call a ‘BOOK’.
I might let you three have a look.

We’ll play my game called DINO-SPOT.

Bonehead thinks he’s the best dino spotter.
But can he find GIGANTOSAURUS?
